

While the IACSSP comment period has officially ended, and the final rule set to go into effect, there are still nearly as many questions as there are answers. While TSA attempted to address the over 400 comments submitted, there is still much ground to cover for IAC's to know what their responsibilities are come February 1. Scheduled for THIS FRIDAY, January 16, 1 :30 p.m. EST, the event is open to all IACs who have verified their status with either the NCBFAA, the AFA or XLA.

In addition to selected panelists from the NCBFAA, XLA and the Airforwards Association, The panel representing TSA includes Cargo Division General Manager Ed Kelly, Air Cargo Manager Doug Brittin, Branch Chief Thomas Friedman, Assistant General Manager of Air Cargo Programs Kim Costner Moore and Policy & Strategic Planning Branch Chief Victor Parker.

Those registering for the session must present their company names and TSA IAC Certification Codes by Friday January 16 at 12:00 EST to HWilliams@kellencompany.com. The appropriate access codes and phone numbers will then be sent via email. All verified IACs participating in the seminar are asked to submit any questions for the TSA to the NCBFAA by email to tom@ncbfaa.org or to the AFA by email to bfried@airforwards.org , by 10 AM EST January 16. Questions will be selected based on timeliness, level of concern raised by the particular issue and reflect the open, informational tone of this particular session. These will be shared with the panels to be addressed, if possible, during the course of the seminar. We look forward to your participation on the call.

Sincerely,

Brandon Fried
Executive Director
The Airforwards Association
